Her Wonderful Teeth

Remove the dingy film that's clouding yours and you'll be surprised that your teeth are just as white and charming as any one's—make this unique test.

HERE is a simple test that proves the truth that most of us have pretty teeth without ever knowing we have, or ever revealing it.

This is the reason: Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film. A film which absorbs discolorations and hides the natural color of your teeth.

Remove it and your teeth take on a new beauty. Maybe you have really beautiful teeth without realizing it.

Film is charged too with most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, and also cracks and stays, causing decay in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of periodontitis.

So, besides loss of tooth beauty, there is serious danger to healthy teeth. You must remove and constantly combat it. It is ever present, ever forming.

Old-time dentifrices were unable to combat it successfully. And tooth troubles were a serious problem.

Now modern science has discovered a new way. A new-type tooth paste called Pepsodent that acts to combat film, then harmoniously to remove it. No soap or chalk, no harsh grit dangerous to enamel.

Mail the coupon for a 10-day tube free. Or, buy a full size tube at any drug store today. See what beauty lies beneath the film on your teeth.

Chief Foreign Labor Sources

Canada and Mexico Chief Sources of Labor Supply in United States—Decided Drop in Immigration Under New Law.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, April 13.—Mexico and Canada at present are the chief sources of foreign labor supply in the United States, according to an analysis of the working of the new immigration restriction law by the National Industrial Conference Board, 247 Park avenue, New York City.

This change in complexion of the inflow of aliens is strikingly apparent during the seven months after the new immigration law went into effect July 1, 1924, to January, 1925, during which period net immigration from Canada and Mexico constituted 78 per cent (81,807) of the total immigration from all countries.

Total net immigration under the new law shows a decided drop, suffering a 78.3 per cent decrease during the period from July 1, 1924, when the new law went into effect, to January, 1925, as compared with the corresponding period in the preceding year. The decrease in net immigration, however, is in part due to a 26.8 per cent increase in emigration during the seven months referred to.

But, while the influx of aliens from the Old World and from the New were fairly evenly divided after the new law went into effect, the return to Europe and other eastern hemisphere countries was so heavy that the net gain in immigration from our own hemisphere was more than three and one-half times as large as the net immigration from the eastern hemisphere.

Total immigration during the first seven months after the new immigration law took effect shows a drop of 68.3 per cent, as compared with the corresponding period in 1923, the total being 168,689 from July 1, 1924, to January, 1925, as against 533,471 in the corresponding months of the preceding year. The influx from the eastern hemisphere under the new law decreased 77.1 per cent, while that from our own continent decreased 51.6 per cent.

Total emigration during the same period increased 26.3 per cent. Emigration to the Old World shows an increase of 30.8 per cent, while the number of aliens leaving the United States for other American countries increased only 5.5 per cent over the corresponding period in 1923. The total influx of 79,741 aliens from the eastern hemisphere is offset by an emigration to it of 55,916 aliens, indicating an enormous rate of return of immigrants from the east to the land of their birth. But only 6,338 aliens left the United States for other countries in America, leaving a net western immigration of 22,950 against a total inflow of 85,948. Of these, 81,807, of 78 per cent are from Canada and Mexico.

Net immigration, representing the permanent increase through immigration since the new law went into effect, July 1, 1924, to last January, amounted to 104,875, as compared with 433,719 in the corresponding period in 1923. Of these 104,875, 22,925 came from the eastern hemisphere, while 82,950 came from the American hemisphere, eastern net immigration having decreased 92.6 per cent, and western net immigration decreased 53.8 per cent with total net immigration showing a 78.3 per cent decrease during the first seven months under the new immigration law.

BUILDING ACTIVITIES INCREASE IN VOLUME.

Building activities throughout the country are increasing in volume as the year advances, according to the national monthly building survey of S. W. Straus & Co., made public today. The survey covers 350 cities and towns. Outside of Greater New York there was a gain throughout the country of 12 per cent for March as compared with March, 1924, and a gain of 10 per cent for the first three months of the year.

There was a loss in Greater New York of $100,540,220 over March last year and $159,844,540 over the first quarter of 1924. These immense losses, however, cannot be taken on their face value as they were brought about by the abnormal issuance of building permits prior to April 1, 1924, when the tax exemption law expired.

The eastern section of the country outside of New York city showed a March gain of 22 per cent; the central region showed a gain of 9 per cent for March; the south 18 per cent; while the Pacific coast states just broke about even for the month.

Of the 25 leading cities of the country, 18 had substantial gains over March last year. Chicago's gain was 10 per cent and Philadelphia's 42 per cent.

A SHORT CAPE AND AN EXOTIC GOWN

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

While the cape lost considerable prestige during the past season for so, there is rather more interest felt in short versions of this graceful garment than has been felt for some time. This is largely because the cape fits in so harmoniously with one's ensemble ideas, particularly as applied to evening clothes. It is also helpful in breaking the straight line—a thing most of the couture seem to insist on doing.

The Pencil Silhouette Plus a Graceful Cape.

Bereft of the circular back cape, Molyneux would find himself adhering to a tube-like gown which, save for the interesting embroidery employed, would be rather devoid of distinction; unless one considers the flare so established, as to make a narrow rather than full hemline the exception.

Certainly more and more street frocks are flaring, and by night one sees fewer and fewer sheath types, the molded line having firmly entrenched itself among the dancers, at all events.

Sleeves have been the subject of many a fashion article, this season, and are deserving of all that has been said about them, yet they are persistently omitted here and there. The afternoon frock, sans sleeves, and the dinner gowns with long sleeves, are among the extremes in which fashion is at present indulging.

Why are the American people so far ahead?

WHEREVER world-travelers come together, the amazing comforts of Americans are sure to come in for discussion. Why is it that the average American lives like a king?

To be sure, he has more money to spend than any other person in the world, but then he insists on spending it to bring better living to himself and family. Who knows what a subtle, but influential, part advertising plays in putting American people ahead?

Advertising, by showing us new and better things, keeps us from being satisfied with "well enough."

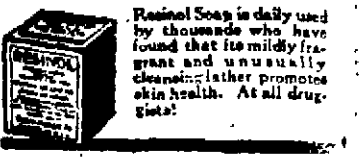

Advertising, by making us want more, wakens the springs of action within us to get more. American advertising is a pretty substantial explanation of American advancement.

Read the Advertisements. They call you to better things.

WOMEN'S CLOTHES AND MEN'S.

The male bird is the fellow for gorgeous plumage, while the female is as modest in her coloring as otherwise. The reverse is true of modern men and women, and, without inquiry one is disposed toward prompt agreement with Mrs. Catt when she says that if women's ideals in dress were as drab and colorless as those of men many great industries would fall and the commerce of the world would very seriously suffer. The facts as to men's expenditures on clothes, however, indicate that they simply support some very considerable industries. It would appear that the outlay of men on clothes is almost as great as that of women. As one looks about, there seems to be little cause to suspect it, yet we have the supposedly authoritative statement that in 1921 the factories turned out women's clothing to the value of $1,022,000,000 and men's clothing to the value of $935,000,000, to which should be added $232,000,000 for shirts, cuffs and collars, which raises the factory output for men a little above that for women.

It is to be borne in mind, however, that the factory output does not tell the whole story, more especially in the case of women. To say nothing of the innumerable gowns manufactured by expert women at home, in 1920 there were 236,000 dressmakers and seamstresses, as compared with 192,000 tailors and tailoresses catering mostly to men. As for luxuries, it is asserted that men—with tobacco included—are larger consumers than women, even when counting in the bill for cosmetics. The failure to mention candy and certain other luxuries in the statistical statement leaves considerable room for doubt, but unquestionably Mrs. Catt's generalizations based on a surface view were rather hasty.

THE WHOLE BIBLE IN A DAY.

The news comes that the whole Bible was read aloud by a congregation at Penn Yan in a single day. This task was accomplished recently by two hundred readers, working in relays. They began the first chapter of Genesis at 3 o'clock in the morning and finished the last chapter of Revelations at 8 o'clock the same night. The Bible is said to contain 774,692 words, counting both the old and new Testaments, and between 3 o'clock in the morning and 8 o'clock at night there are 1,020 minutes. Therefore the readers averaged 758 words a minute, and as the average public speaker delivers only 125 words a minute, the record-breaking speed of that irreverent gallop through Holy Writ at Penn Yan is manifest. Probably never before was there such a rapid outpouring of words by the human voice.

As the Latins would have said, cul bono? What good or useful purpose could have been served? Were the madly-racing readers benefited? Were the listeners inspired?—supposing that a single one of them was able to endure and sit in his place to the end. It is said that the object of this extraordinary performance was to "stimulate religion," but the actual results must have included not only a cheapening of Scripture, but an intolerable weariness and an imperious urge to run away to the regular business of daily life, on the part of both the exhausted readers and those who tried to listen. In spite of dulled ears and stunned minds, to a torrent of words poured out with express-train speed. Well meant, of course, but amazingly misguided.

Japanese girls are bobbing their hair, but they are likely to wait some few years for the ballet. Even manhood suffrage was blocked in the Diet three years ago and only now, at last, is the opposition to it in the House of Peers reported to be weakening. Under present restrictions Japan has only about three million voters. The proposed extension of the suffrage will add about fifteen million.

After having had stew for supper every night for seven years and seeing the same dish before him, one man, Alexander Libman, leaped up with a hoarse cry of rage and struck his wife. Very wrong, of course, but we suspect that more civilized men than Libman might be unable to suppress a brain storm after being obliged to eat 2,565 stews in unbroken succession.

The girl who killed her mother in San Francisco wanted to be tried by a jury of men, which seems to be a pretty good reason for picking a jury of women.

THIN BLOOD.

On of the ailments that is of intense interest to everybody, is what is called pernicious anemia. It seems to rank with cancer in eluding efforts of our scientific men. You may remember that there is one form of anemia where the coloring matter of the red blood cells becomes diminished in amount.

This is usually cured by fresh air and proper diet.

But in pernicious anemia, there is a loss in the number of blood cells themselves, and also the loss of haemoglobin.

A research man, Dr. Cornell, working in Dr. Banting's laboratory, has been doing some special work on this form of anemia.

By experiments on animals he has been able to bring the blood of the animal to about the same condition as found in pernicious anemia. He points out that there are two theories as to the cause, one which attributes the trouble to the blood-forming organs themselves, and the other attributing it to the effects of some poisonous substance in the blood itself.

That it is due to some poisonous substance is accepted by most investigators now. That the poison, from whatever source it originates, has a definitely harmful effect upon the nervous system and the blood itself.

Many of the cases are thought to have their origin in the pus from the gums in pyorrhea. Now as thousands of people have pyorrhea, and few have pernicious anemia, some other factor must enter into it. Some investigators point out that a severe shock, some emotional disturbance, some sustained strain, so affects the nervous and blood system, that a certain special poison thus gets an opportunity of doing its deadly work.

The gaining of this much knowledge about pernicious anemia is encouraging to say the least.

Blood transfusion and rest are the big factors in treating this condition.

Embargo on Live Poultry Removed

Measures Adopted To Combat Poultry Plague Very Effective—No Outbreak in New York State Since Establishment of Embargo.

So effective were the measures adopted by the Department of Farms and Markets in combating the spread of poultry plague, a highly infectious disease which threatened the flocks of the state, that within two or three months the embargo against the shipment of live fowls and chickens into this state from other states will be discontinued, according to an announcement made by Commissioner Berne A. Pytko.

Commissioner Pytko stated that the embargo had already been removed on the shipment of live poultry into New York from states west of the Mississippi and that in the eastern states the plague has been pretty well cleaned up. The embargo still stands against the shipment of poultry from Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois into New York state. Shipments are allowed from New Jersey and Indiana through a modification of the quarantine, which has just been issued. This modification allows poultry from Indiana and New Jersey to come into this state if accompanied by a health certificate issued by a veterinarian approved by the state authorities.

Early in December, Commissioner Pytko received reports of a disease which had attacked poultry in New York city, and he instructed H. J. Henry, director of the Bureau of Animal Industry, to conduct an investigation. The report showed that the disease was highly communicable and greatly prevalent in shipments of live fowls and chickens coming into New York. Conferences were arranged with representatives of the live poultry trade and the commissioner of health of New York. As a result of these, Commissioner Pytko, on December 12, issued an embargo order against the shipment of poultry into the state from Missouri, Illinois, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Indiana, and Iowa. The order also prohibited the shipment of live fowls or chickens out of New York city.

The commissioner received a report showing that there have been practically no outbreaks in New York state since the embargo was established, and the Bureau of Animal Industry estimates that the loss in the up-state was comparatively small. The losses in New York city was more extensive, more than 50 tons of live poultry shipped in from other states being destroyed in a single day.

Veterinarians have stated that poultry plague probably made its way into this country from Europe, although the source has not been definitely determined.

The disease on one farm in the up-state resulted in the death of 627 chickens in 21 days. At another point there was a loss of about 60, but these outbreaks were quickly taken care of by veterinarians from the department, with the result that the plague was practically checked outside of New York city.

EASTER AT THE RONDOUT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Easter Sunday was appropriately celebrated on Sunday in the Rondout Presbyterian Church with communion services and the administration of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper at the morning service at which time two new members were admitted to the congregation, Miss Helen Beeres and Miss Helen Stalter.

The pulpit had been banked in Easter lilies and other flowers of the Easter season, and the services were most impressive. The Rev. Dr. Charles G. Ellis, pastor of the church, took as his Easter sermon theme, "Where the Lord Lay" and delivered an able and scholarly address. The church choir rendered a special musical program with solos by Miss Virginia Loskamp, Miss Beatrice Dyke and Miss Jane Hutton.

At the afternoon services the church choir sang "The Holy City" by Gaul. The soloists were Miss Beatrice Dyke, soprano; Miss Virginia Loskamp, contralto; Earl Clum, tenor, and Harold Brigham, baritone. Others who assisted the choir were Miss Mildred Messenger, contralto, and Russell Dana, George Hudler, Lester Elmendorf, Charles R. O'Connor and George Kibbie, members of the Mendelssohn Club. Harry P. Dodge presided at the organ. The solo work was exceptionally fine as well as the chorus singing. Miss Dyke is the possessor of a beautiful and well trained soprano voice and her work was exceptionally fine. Mr. Clum and Mr. Brigham, as usual, were in excellent voice while Miss Loskamp, who is director of the choir, sang the contralto solos beautifully.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society will be held in the chapel on Tuesday afternoon, April 21, for the election of officers.

The annual meeting of the church and congregation will be held in the chapel Thursday evening for the purpose of electing three trustees in the place of John F. Rowland, Louis Beeres and Clarence S. Rowland, whose terms of office expire.

The annual meeting of the North River Presbyterian Society will be held in Marlborough on Friday with morning and afternoon sessions. Among the speakers will be Mrs. William M. Hallock of Brazil and Mrs. Louderbough from the board of national missions of the Presbyterian Church. It is expected that a large delegation from the church will attend. The committee in charge of arrangements consists of Mrs. C. G. Ellis and Mrs. I. W. Scott, and those intending to go should notify either at once. The basket lunch will be in charge of Miss Sara Huber.

The Ushers' Club are arranging for an entertainment to be held in the chapel Friday evening, May 1, to be given by George Warwick, famous chalk artist. The proceeds will be for the calendar fund of the church.

TICKETS FOR THE ENTERTAINMENT MAY BE OBTAINED OF ANY MEMBER OF THE CLUB OR AT THE DOOR THE NIGHT OF THE ENTERTAINMENT.

The church session has had a telephone installed in the session room at the church.

Sunday was the last of the vesper services for the year and evening services at 7:30 o'clock will be resumed Sunday evening.

FIVE NEW GAME REFUGES.

Conservation Commission Sets Aside Thirteen Hundred Acres.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, April 13.—Five new bird and game refuges covering a total of nearly 1,300 acres have been established by the conservation commission in Erie, Jefferson, Chenango and Suffolk counties.

On February 25, at the request of the town board of Wales, Erie county, the conservation commission set aside certain lands dedicated for that purpose as a game and bird refuge for a period of ten years. This means that the taking of birds and game on such lands is prohibited during this period. The lands in question, located in the town of Wales, contain about 375 acres.

On the same date the commission also established a game and bird refuge on three parcels of land containing about 318 acres, in the towns of Aurora and Elma, Erie county.

An April 7, the commission set aside as bird and game refuges all of the land owned by the state surrounding the three game bird farms. As soon as the land can be posted, all hunting, trapping and trespassing thereon for these purposes will be prohibited for all time unless otherwise permitted by the commission. The refuges thus established will include about 240 acres in Jefferson county, where the Brownville farm is located; 145 acres in Chenango county where the Sherburne farm is located, and 200 acres in Suffolk county belonging to the farm at Middle Island.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE LACE DOLL

Beatrice had never before been to a big city. It was a great event when her father and mother told her they were going to take her for a visit with them to a very, very big place.

Beatrice packed her bag—a little straw bag which Aunt Claus had given to her the Christmas before.

It was such a big straw bag, very light and easy to carry and yet it held quite a good deal, too—particularly so if you pushed everything in hard enough.

The bag was of green and tan straw, and this was the first time it had been taken away on a trip.

Beatrice began packing a week before, but she kept putting more and more things in each day, until the bag was very queer looking with its sides bulging out in all directions.

And then she didn't have all the things in she really needed at all.

So the day before they started she took everything out and packed all over again.

Of course her rag doll had to go along and so did the toy monkey, but she decided to leave the rest of her dolls at home. There was no room for them, and they were a little too young to be taken on such a trip after all.

They could go later, she told them, when they were older. They were very good about it, too. They didn't act disappointed or sulky in the least.

Then she put in her little rubber bag with a toothbrush and sponge and all the little things she needed every night and every morning. Her brush and comb—oh, there were a number of these odds and ends which Beatrice knew must be taken along.

There was her best dress and hat but her mother had said she would take those.

So Beatrice put handkerchiefs and stockings and little things in her bag. At last they reached the big city. It was the strangest place in the world.

There were just crowds and crowds of streets and cars and motors and people all the time.

At night there was a constant noise—a queer humming sound quite unlike the sounds of the crickets and the owls and the leaves of the trees swishing and laughing as they thought of things to say to each other.

The next day they went shopping. The shops, too, were crowded. And Beatrice began to feel homesick for the country and her own friends and the places she knew.

But now her mother said they were going to visit a toy shop.

It was a dream shop. Beatrice had, actually, to pinch herself to make sure that she wasn't asleep. There was everything in this shop.

There were all the toys one could ever think of and so many more besides.

But of all the wonderful toys a little doll, a tiny china doll with a dress made of china lace filled her heart with longing.

Oh, if she could own that doll, she would be perfectly, perfectly happy always.

She stood looking at it, not noticing that she had forgotten to follow her mother who had gone to look at some bigger dolls. And then, something wonderful than any dream happened to her.

A kindly man looked down at her, and said:

"Little girl, do you like that doll?"

"Oh, I think it's the most beautiful thing I've ever seen in all my life. I adore it!"

"Maybe you'd like to own it," the kindly man said.

"Oh, I'm sure it's so beautiful it must cost dollars and dollars."

"No, it's not so very expensive—it is rather unusual—but it won't be expensive at all. I'll give it to you."

"But how can you give it to me? Are you so very, very rich?"

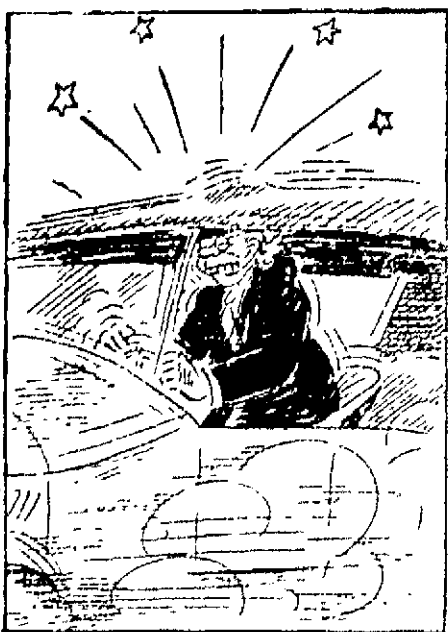

"I own this shop," the kindly man said, "and I think I know children. I know the little china lace doll will always be happy with you, so it is yours."

Too Noisy for Elmer

Elmer is a great reader, and when he gets a new book he generally forgets what is going on around him.

One day when he was reading a particularly interesting story his small brother and his friend were playing they were Indians, and when they spoke it up so that even Elmer was unable to concentrate he shouted at them: "Say, can't you kids play something besides a noisy game?"

FOREWORD.
THERE IS NO STORY MORE FASCINATING THAN THAT OF THE DISCOVERY & DEVELOPMENT OF AMERICA. THIS COUNTRY OF OURS.
ROMANTIC, ADVENTUROUS, STRANGER THAN FICTION, THE STORY THAT UNFOLDS SHOULD MAKE US ALL PROUD TO BE AMERICANS.
BUT IN ORDER TO UNDERSTAND HOW IT ALL CAME ABOUT WE MUST TURN BACK HISTORY'S PAGES AND SEE WHAT WAS GOING ON IN EUROPE TOO YEARS AGO.

Not to the swift the race;
Not to the strong the fight;
Not to the righteous perfect grace;
Not to the wise the light.
But often falling feet
Come surest to the goal;
And they who walk in darkness meet
The sunrise of the soul.

SEASONABLE FOODS

By marketing occasionally in person at least once a week, one gets a better idea of what is available. As spring arrives we use less meat and more fish; eggs are cheaper and are used more freely in custards, omelets and in various main dishes. To avoid monotony in the menu follow the calendar and try to serve the things most plentiful.

Nut Caramel Delights.—Prepare a sponge cake as follows: Beat until stiff two egg whites, add one-third of a cupful of sugar gradually, beating with the egg beater, then add two well-beaten eggs, with two tablespoonfuls of cold water; mix with a spoon. Put into a measuring cup three-quarters of a tablespoonful of cornstarch and bread flour to make one-half a cup, then add one-third teaspoonful of baking powder and one-eighth teaspoonful of salt; sift these dry ingredients and beat into the egg mixture. Flavor with one-half teaspoonful of lemon extract or vanilla, if preferred. Bake the cakes in small ovals which have been well buttered. When cool, cut into halves and remove a piece from the center of each half, fill the space with a custard filling and put the halves together so that the edges are even; dip into a caramel syrup to make a thin coating all over the cake, then lay in a dish of chopped browned almonds, covering the cakes as completely as possible. Remove to another plate and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

For the filling, take one cupful of scalded milk, mix one-half cupful of sugar with three tablespoonfuls of flour and a pinch of salt; add to this one egg slightly beaten and add all to the hot milk in a double boiler. Cook slowly twenty minutes, flavor with lemon extract or a mixture of lemon and vanilla and cool before using.

To prepare the caramel syrup, melt one-half cupful of sugar in a smooth saucepan, then add six tablespoonfuls of boiling water and simmer until the caramel is dissolved.

Arabian Dancing Girls

The Arabian dancing girls, a true story, explain, "are born to their profession. Many of them had dancing mothers. Others are dedicated to the profession by their mothers when they are but babies. While there are no dancing schools, these children practice continually, imitating from earliest childhood the steps and movements of the dancers, until they are highly skilled to it themselves."

"Unlike the other Arab women, these dancing girls appear with their faces uncovered. They wear heavy and voluminous skirts, like old-fashioned European dresses. They are frequently very plain, decorated only by the tangles and chains. While the girls are no more beautiful than other girls, they have something about them which makes them very delightful."

AFRA

Afra a martyr in Crete, during the Diocletian persecutions, which commenced A. D. 305. She was a pagan and a courtesan, but she no longer heard the Gospel preached, then she confessed her sins and was baptized. Her former lovers, enraged at this change, denounced her as a Christian.

She was taken before the magistrates, avowed her Faith with firmness and was burned. Her mother and three servants, who had shared her crimes and repentance, were arrested, as they watched by her tomb. They suffered the same fate.

HANDEL

The first oratorio of George Frederick Handel, greatest of all composers of that style of musical drama, was given its initial performance 121 years ago today. When Handel was in his twentieth year, this oratorio was based on the Passion and was a work of considerable merit, although not as great as his subsequent oratorios, "Saul," "Messiah," "Samson," "Israel in Egypt," "Solomon," "Judas Macabeh" and "Jephthah." Handel early developed a passion for music, and at the age of seven he was placed under the tuition of Zachau, organist of the Halle Cathedral. His first opera, "Almira," was composed when he was still in his teens. Although his operas were successful, it was by his oratorios that he obtained great and enduring fame, and his "Messiah" is considered by most musicians to be the most sublime work of his kind ever produced. Handel lost his eyesight some years before his death, but continued to perform in public and even to compose. He died in London 144 years ago today, on the anniversary of the first public performance of his initial oratorio, and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

Jefferson's Birthday

JEFFERSON'S BIRTHDAY

Thomas Jefferson, the great statesman, who played an important part in the early history of the nation, who will be honored today by political organizations all over the country. For years the thirteenth of April, Jefferson's birthday, has been a legal holiday in Alabama, and a movement has been inaugurated to extend the observance. The preservation of Monticello, the Virginia home of the eminent Democrat has provided a permanent memorial in his honor. It was to this home that Jefferson retired after his long public career had come to an end. "Jeffersonian Simplicity," although proverbial, is largely a myth. For Jefferson, greatest of Democrats in his intellectual convictions, and in his passionate devotion to the cause of liberty, was in his personal life and habits, an aristocrat. He was a man of great intellectual industry, and a sincere popular leader, but the difference between his standard of living and that of "the poor whites" of his day was a greater gulf than that now found between the millionaire and the workman. Jefferson was an original thinker in every department of human endeavor. In both politics and religion, he subjected everything to the test of his reason. Like Franklin, Paine and many other famous men of his period, he has been denounced as an "infidel," as a matter of fact his religious views were very much like those now held by the Unitarians. Our third president was born at Shadwell, Va., April 13, 1743.

WANTED

Securities Sales Manager In Kingston

An unusual opportunity presents itself for a successful untrained securities sales manager who has built and maintained a business-getting sales force for others, to work for himself and reap the consequent greater profits.

To such a man we are prepared to give a full dealer's contract on liberal commission basis, such as has been the means of establishing dozens of our present dealers, in other cities and states, in a pleasant, profitable and permanent business of their own.

Our present dealers have been with us ten, fifteen and twenty years and we have letters from them testifying to the fact that our dealership has been responsible for their ownership of their own homes, automobiles, etc., and that they make from $20,000 to $50,000 and more annually through their dealer ships.

Full and most effective cooperation will be given the man whose record of performance for others proves him worthy of a Kingston dealership for himself.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, April 13.—Little progress was made by any of the major departments of the stock market today. Even the motor stocks failed to attract or to hold speculative interest and after pushing a few of the high priced industrials to slightly higher levels, traders permitted the market to wander aimlessly.

Maxwell, Nash and a few other motor shares resumed their rally with the opening of the market for a new week.

The further decline of Chicago and Northwestern to a new low of 47 1/2, down about eight points on the current movement, was an unsettling factor in the railroad list and helped in the spreading of a reactionary tone among the other northwestern railroad shares.

Commodity markets were unsettled. Grain markets were unable to retain all of the sensational advances acquired in Saturday's session and May wheat declined about two cents a bushel. Cotton was steady in the absence of foreign buying. Further ease in the money market was evidenced by the drop in call money rates to 3 1/2 per cent, the ruling rate for the day.

Professional bulls in American and other high priced industrials maintained their favorite stocks at higher levels in the almost complete absence of public buying. Shorts in American Woolen were squeezed when the price advanced to 40 1/2 against the recent low of 35 1/2. Stocks of the big mercantile concerns like Sears Roebuck, etc., were in good demand on favorable retail trade reports.

In both accidents the damage was slight.

Talent Long Unrecognized.

Meiba's voice made her famous in every part of the civilized world, but when she was struggling for a career, in her early days, she met with some rebuffs which would have effectively discouraged many another person. She was called to the attention of Sir Arthur Sullivan in 1886 and he did not think enough of her voice to warrant him in putting her in his Savoy Opera company. She was also declined as a pupil by Sig. Alberto Randegger.—Columbus Dispatch.

Prefer Wireless to Study.

Broadcasting is causing a large number of schoolboys to scamp their home lessons. Is the complaint of the head master of an English grammar school. He has sent out a circular letter to parents calling their attention to the serious effect listening in is having on the work of the boys and expressing the hope that parents will strictly regulate the conditions under which wireless is used.

Frank Lightning.

A freak bolt of lightning struck the ungrazed shore of a workman at Salem, Mass., split into three parts, and jumped to three different houses. In one house it consumed six-months-old twins. Weather-burrowing and plaster were torn from the second house. The third house was a bungalow, just completed, which was damaged slightly. The workman was uninjured.

Immense Electric Sign.

In Philadelphia an electric sign weighing 30 tons has been set up which requires a total of 4,000 electric jumps to illuminate it. The individual letters of the sign are 30 feet tall and the electricity it utilizes would supply all the artificial light needed by a town of 6,000 people.

IMPROVEMENT SEEN IN BREEDING STOCK

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

More than 1,000,000 head of breeding stock on farms in the United States are undergoing systematic improvement through the use of pure bred sires, according to a report just issued by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. Persons participating in this work at the close of the year 1922 numbered 15,137 exclusive users of pure bred sires, widely distributed among 46 states. The department, in conjunction with state and county extension workers, is aiding these stock owners to improve their methods of breeding and feeding.

This organized plan known as the better-sires-better-stock campaign has resulted in noticeable rivalry among counties and states, where agricultural leaders have used it as a means of bettering farm live stock. Ohio, Kentucky and Virginia each have more than 2,000 farmers enrolled in the campaign. Largely through the activities of county extension agents, 40 counties in nine states each have the distinction of possessing 100 or more live stock owners who are using pure bred sires exclusively in all their live stock breeding operations. Pulaski county, Virginia, leads the list with 592 such breeders, and Union county, Kentucky, is second with 457 participants. The chief advances in the progress of the work during the last three months of 1922 occurred in Kentucky, Vermont and Ohio. A conspicuous new center of interest in this field of live stock betterment was in Lee county, Iowa. Altogether 235 additional stock owners affiliated themselves with the cause during the three-month period.

In commenting on the keen interest which live stock owners are taking in systematic improvement by the better-sires route, specialists of the bureau of animal industry call attention to the most important result of the work—namely, the superior types of animals which these breeders are raising and the substantial market benefits they are deriving. As a typical example, an Oklahoma stock owner reported to the department that "the difference in price on the market more than pays to keep pure bred even though we sell no breeding stock." Scores of similar reports show that the benefits are practically the same in all parts of the country. The department's records, showing the gradual growth of the better-sires movement, appear to be an index to the growing prevalence of good live stock on farms and in market centers.

But before good live stock can be produced in large numbers, the specialists add, there must be a wide appreciation of the utility value of good breeding coupled with the actual use of high-class pure bred sires at the head of the herds and flocks. The better-sires-better-stock campaign undertakes to supply this need in an educational way.

Any live stock owner who replaces his inferior male breeding animals with good pure bred is eligible to take an active part in this work. The department grants each participant a barn sign, "Pure Bred Sires Exclusively Used on This Farm," besides furnishing helpful information on the breeding, feeding and care of farm animals.

The new report on the progress of the work contains summaries of state and county activities, statistics on number, kind and breeding of animals, announcements and terse facts on the practical value of improved stock. It contains nine pages and is in mimeographed form. Copies may be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, from the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Breed Dairy Cows for Late Fall Freshening.

Dairymen who can successfully practice a system whereby their cows will freshen during the early winter months almost invariably make a greater net return and find that the cow's production holds up longer, as when spring grass comes the milk flow is stimulated after three or four months of winter production.

In addition the price of butterfat is increased during these months, which is an added inducement for early winter freshening.

IF I WERE A WOMAN!

I would certainly cut this advertisement out of the paper and place it squarely before my husband at the breakfast table.

Then I'd Tell Him—that the Kingston Dealers Used Car Exchange, Inc., pays the sellers for his old car a good fair price.

“ “ “ —that it takes these cars, reconitions the motor, straightens out the fenders, puts on new tires, where needed, and paints it if necessary.

“ “ “ —that these cars are guaranteed to be exactly as represented.

“ “ “ —that the batteries are unconditionally guaranteed for six (6) months.

“ “ “ —that he can buy a car on a little money down and the balance monthly.

“ “ “ —that the Exchange is open evenings.

And Then I'd see that he came down and bought that car I have wanted so long.

For him to select from there is almost every make of car. There are Roadsters, Tourings, Coupes and Sedans. Can't you get him down tonight?
